May 17, 2014

To Die of Love

Luis Angel López

What sweet suffering,
when one suffers for love!
I beg You never let my agony end...
I want to remain at Your feet forever, oh Lord.

Eternity is not enough for me to adore You.
The mountains turn to dust and the seas dry up.
Everything in this world comes to an end,
but my heart goes on burning with love for You.

If I could see Your face, my God,
I would die a thousand times of love,
contemplating Your beauty and admiring Your perfection.

But what a little thing I am!,
barely something insignificant.
And You are so Great and Divine...
Words are not enough to confess you all my love.

When I thought that I had lost You forever,
I went mad with pain.
What a cruel torment to be far away from my Beloved!
Not even the longed-for death took pity of me, sinner.

How can I not love You, my Love,
if You were the only one who loved me?
I was crying on the floor, with a broken heart
and You embraced me and gave me a new dream.

Please don't ever leave me so alone anymore
My life doesn't have meaning without You.
I was born to love You.
I don't know how to do anything else, Lord.